

You are not alone

RESOURCES FOR ADULTS AND THEIR CHILDREN
AFTER LEAVING AN ABUSIVE RELATIONSHIP

MONTREAL

There can be practical and emotional barriers to leaving an abusive relationship.

It is important to acknowledge that you are a survivor.
You and your children may have many mixed emotions about what you have been through and about the uncertain future.

Moving Forward

When leaving an abusive relationship, it is important you do so with support and engage in safety planning. You may expect to feel good about your choice to leave your abusive partner right away. However, this often takes time. You may feel confused, scared and a deep sense of loss. Your sense of self-identity and confidence is likely to be negatively affected and you may have difficulty in trusting the people around you. Allow yourself time to heal and understand that recovery is a journey and a process that takes time and energy. You have bravely taken the first steps in this process.

Yourself

There are many strategies to help you move forward, starting with the following:

REFLECT

Now that you're in a safer place where you cannot be reached by your abusive ex-partner, it is important to limit contact with them as much as possible. If there are guardianship or custody concerns, seek legal guidance on how to proceed. If you feel the need to communicate with the abusive partner you have left, write your feelings in a journal or write a letter without sending it. Getting your thoughts and feelings down on paper is an excellent way to help you release some of the very difficult emotions you are going through right now.

FIND A SUPPORT NETWORK

Ask for help and consider sharing your story. Think about joining a support group, find a counselor or therapist for yourself and for your children. Look to family and friends that have shown support and that you feel that you can trust to continue to help maintain your safety right now. There are intimate partner/domestic violence advocates and support services that are able to help you navigate through this process and to remind you that you are not alone. A list of local support services can be found at the end of this booklet.

TAKE CARE OF YOURSELF

It may be difficult to sleep, eat, or be active. Remind yourself that you are in a safe place and try to create a plan of care for you and your child/children's immediate needs, like sleep and nutrition. A plan can help with the transition to a new and different place and pace of life. If you are experiencing flashbacks, consult with a therapist (see resource list at the end of this booklet) to help find strategies to alleviate those feelings and images.

RECONNECT WITH YOURSELF

After leaving an abusive relationship, it is important to reconnect with yourself. Make yourself a priority and practice self-compassion, patience and self-kindness. Taking care of yourself is a way to take care of your children because as you heal, your capacity to help them heal too will grow. There are many ways in which you can practice self-care including: positive affirmations, regular exercise, breathing, spending time in nature, and being creative through art. Note that some activities, like meditation can be challenging for survivors of trauma, and only do activities that relax you. Seeking support from a therapist can help you process what you have gone through and are still going through, as well as help you find strategies that work for you. Take your time.

Exposure to intimate violence can have long-term implications for children. Your children will have their own reactions and feelings to the current situation, and may experience and process it differently than you. There is help for children who have witnessed and/or experienced violence at home and many ways to support them. Their connection to you, as well as the bonds they have created with other caring adults will help them through the recovery process. Compassion and empathy are important factors when supporting children with the trauma they may have experienced and the grief they may begin to feel as they move through their own healing journey.

Remember that healing is a process and it is essential to give yourself permission to take the time you need to recover.
Your life is your own to live.

Your Children

Here are some of the many ways that you can help to support your children:

BE PRESENT

Try to take some time every day to spend being present with your children. Give yourself permission to continue your bond with your child without distractions: connect with your child or children by reading a book, taking a walk, having a conversation, or by simply playing together. This can be difficult as you are still dealing with your own powerful feelings, but even a few minutes of time dedicated to connecting with your child or children can be beneficial to their wellbeing. Be kind to yourself.

FOLLOW YOUR CHILD'S LEAD

Your children may react very differently than you after leaving an abusive situation. It is not uncommon for children to express anger towards the abused parent upon leaving. Give them the time they need to work through their feelings and help them navigate the best way they can express themselves. If they are open to talking with you, do your best to listen actively and without pressure - sit beside them, repeat back what you hear, ask them to tell you more, let them know that you hear what they are saying, and try to respond with supportive words.

BE HONEST

After leaving an abusive relationship, it is important for you to help make your child feel safe and to not make promises you can't keep. Answer questions they have honestly while remembering to keep your answers age appropriate.

HELP THEM DEVELOP COPING SKILLS

Teaching your child coping skills and giving them the tools that they need to move forward and feel safe will take time. We can help children reduce stress by asking what helps them best. Some suggestions could include breathing and mindfulness exercises, creating art, writing activities, being active, and getting into nature. Connecting your child to a children's mental health therapist can be one way to help your child develop and enhance their coping skills. A list of mental health support services is provided at the end of this resource booklet.

Resources

NON EMERGENCY CRISIS LINES (EMERGENCIES DIAL 911)

These lines are available 24/7 unless other hours are specified.

Specializing in Intimate Partner/Family Violence

Assistance Aux Femmes (English, French, and Spanish):
514-270-8291

Women Aware (Monday – Friday, 10am - 3pm):
1-866-489-1110

Le Parados Inc.: 1-800-363-9010, Text 1-438-601-1211
Accessed through SOS Conjugal

L'Escale Pour Elles: 1-800-363-9010, Text 1-438-601-1211
Accessed through SOS Conjugal

General Mental Health Lines

Hope for Wellness Help Line: 1-855-242-3310

Live Chat: hopeforwellness.ca

Serves Indigenous peoples in English, French, Cree, Ojibway, and Inuktitut

Kids Help Phone: 1-800-668-6868, Text 686868

Live Chat (7pm - 12am): kidshelpphone.ca

Tel-Aide (7am - 11pm): 514 935-1101

PROGRAMS AND ONGOING SUPPORT SERVICES FOR SURVIVORS AND THEIR CHILDREN

Various agencies offer individual and/or group counselling for survivors of intimate partner and/or family violence and their children. They provide a safe environment for survivors and witnesses of violence to talk about their experiences and process their emotions. Survivors and their children may be treated together or separately depending on the program. Waitlists and age limits are noted as applicable.

Assistance Aux Femmes offers active listening, psychosocial assistance, and support to women and their children in English, French and Spanish. Interpreters are called in when needed to serve individuals in other languages. Appointments are available on Tuesdays and Thursdays, 9am-5pm. Services are open to the public.
Telephone: 514-270-8291
Web: assistanceauxfemmes.ca

Auberge Shalom Pour Femmes offers crisis intervention, individual counselling, and support groups to survivors who identify as women and their children (5-14). Specialized services for the Orthodox Jewish community are also offered. (~2-3-week waitlist). Services are open to the public.
Telephone: 514-485-4783
Web: aubergeshalom.org

Maison Inter-Val 1175 offers support to mothers to help them understand the impact of intimate partner/family violence on their children and to work on their mother/child relationship. They also provide individual follow-up with children and adolescents. There are no age limits, but treatment outcomes will be optimized if the child can speak. They do not operate a waitlist, but there is currently availability.
Telephone: 438-812-0711
Web: inter-val.ca

PROGRAMS FOR SURVIVORS

Anjou Shelter offers individual counselling to women (16+).
Telephone: 514-353-5908
Email: directionmha@videotron.ca
Web: fmhf.ca/maison/maison-dhebergement-anjou

Halte-Femmes Montreal-Nord offers one to five sessions of individual counselling and two support groups per week to women (18 or younger). Specialized services for immigrant women are also available.
Telephone: 514-328-2055
Web: haltefemmes.org

La Maison des Femmes Sourdes de Montreal offers counselling to women that are deaf and hearing-impaired (14+) in French. Other supports such as accompaniment to various resources and acting as a communication facilitator are also available.
Telephone: 514-255-5680, Teletype: 514-255-6376
Email: femmessourdes@mfsm.ca
Web: mfsm.info

Shield of Athena Family Services offers multilingual individual counselling and support groups to women (18+) in English & Greek. (~2-3-week waitlist)
Telephone: 514-274-8117
Web: shieldofathena.com

Women Aware offers support groups and peer-based support for women. Some multilingual options may be available on request.
Telephone: 1-866-489-1110
Web: womenaware.ca

Women's Centre of Montreal offers immediate telephone support and ten weekly sessions of psychosocial support to women (18+) in French, English, Arabic, Spanish and Creole languages. Culturally sensitive support for Indigenous women is also available. A sliding scale fee of $1-20 is charged per weekly session. (~3-6-month waitlist.)
Telephone: 514-842-4780
Web: centredesfemmesdemtl.org

FUNDING ASSISTANCE FOR FIRST NATIONS AND INUIT CHILDREN

Funding assistance for a wide range of health, social and educational needs, including counselling, is available through the following programs:

Inuit Child First Initiative

Telephone: 1-855-572-4453 (24/7)

Web: canada.ca/supporting-inuit-children

Jordan's Principle

Telephone: 1-855-572-4453 (24/7),

Teletype 1-866-553-0554 (24/7)

Web: canada.ca/jordans-principle

Thank you - Artsy Vibes (cover), Green Chameleon (page 2) and Christin Hume (page 6) for photography from unsplash.com.

Disclaimer: Resources included in this booklet are for information purposes and does not infer endorsement of the organization or their practitioners.

It is not uncommon to feel shame or self-blame after leaving an abusive intimate partner relationship.
Being the survivor of an abusive partner is not your fault:
you are not to blame. What you and your children have been through is violence and can feel traumatic.
Experiencing abuse affects how we feel and how we respond to ourselves, other people, and the world around us.
Understand that you are not alone. Your children are not alone.
There are many support systems in place for you and your children.

There is help.

www.mylesahead.ca

